Bora Bora

SOCIETY ISLANDS - TUAMOTU ISLANDS - GAMBIE ISLANDS - MARQUESAS ISLANDS - AUSTRAL ISLANDS

The romantic island

Emerging from the ocean about 3 million years ago, Bora Bora means "first born" in Tahitian. This mythical island, once known as "Maitépora" (created by gods), was the first earth to come out of the waters after skiing, snorkelling or even cruising on glass bottomed canoes. Bora Bora is the ideal place for enjoying aquatic activities as well as sunbathing on the white sand beaches of Matira Point or on the motus (islets) scattered in the warm crystal-clear waters. One can also take unforgettable walks on those motus, especially on "Motu Tapu", where visitors will enjoy the forbidden pleasures of an islet formerly reserved for kings.

Raiatea and was ruled by women for a long time.

"The Pearl of the Pacific", as Captain Cook baptised her bears the magic of the most beautiful Polynesian islands. This ancient stretched volcano shows its two peaks, Mounts Pahia and Otemanu, whose green colors stand out against the jade, turquoise and sapphire shades of the lagoon.

Known to be the most beautiful in the world, the lagoon, linked to the ocean by the Teavanui pass, is a natural swimming pool which offers a large variety of aquatic activities such as diving, sailing, jet

Selling tips

The lagoon in all its splendor: a volcano located in one of the most beautiful lagoons in the world surrounded by translucent water and fringed with idyllic motus.

Perfect for island romance and a special destination for honeymoon couples, Bora Bora enjoys a varied hotel infrastructure from grand luxury to the small family boarding houses all perfectly merging with the magic of the exceptional natural beauty of the island. Traditional marriage ceremonies are also available in certain hotels although not legally valid.

The unique over-water bungalow experience should not be missed: designed in pure Polynesian style, it offers an outstanding level of comfort in a most picturesque setting. Look through the turquoise waters of the lagoon to the bottom through a glass floor in your room. Wake up to the special treat of enjoying breakfast delivered to you by canoe.

The underwater world of Bora Bora will satisfy even the most demanding diver: the manta ray's ballet; majestic sharks; encounters with the gentle napoleons; and the multitude of multicolored fish. Beginner and advanced divers alike will don flippers and mask to join them in their amazing underwater world.

A broad range of land and water sports activities offered by the island's hotels or private providers: helicopter tours; hiking or outings in 4x4 to the interior of the island; horseback riding; parasailing; lagoon rides in glass-bottomed boats or outboard canoes; sailing on standard or luxury yachts; deep-sea fishing; picnics on a motu; feeding the rays and sharks. These are only some of the activities to be enjoyed.

A refined cuisine: a blend of French and international dishes, supplemented with Polynesian specialties served to the sounds and rhythms of traditional song and dance.

Daily flights and regular boat schedules (2 to 3 sailings per week from Tahiti): Bora Bora is a 50-minute flight and a 10-hour boat trip from Tahiti.

Health: 1 infirmary at Vaitape.

Banks: 1 "Banque de Polynésie",
1 "Banque Socredo".

Other Polynesian name: Pora Pora, Vavau - Name given by discoverers: San Pedro - Location: 175 miles N.W of Tahiti - Surface: 47 sq miles
Highest peak: Turi (2027ft) - Population: 5,757 - Agriculture: coprah, taro, bananas, melons

Inland excursions or eco-tourism

The wharf at Vaitape, the administrative center of Bora Bora, is accessed by the island's single reef passage, Teavanui, beside the charming islet of Motu Tapu which was also the location of the filming of "Taboo" by Friedrich Murnau. It was also the place of refuge for a while of the great French explorer Paul-Emile Victor.

The main village square has been named Alan Gerbault Square after the world navigator, famous from the turn of the century, who adopted this island as his own. It is in the form of a marae with three stone tiers. The road to the north of the island leads to Farepiti Point at the head of the deep Faanui Bay.

The village of the same name was once the stronghold of the former ruling family which explains the fact that there are a number of marae to be seen as you drive around the bay. At Farepiti Point, you can also see the raised stones of the royal Farerua Marae also known as Marotetini. At two other sites near the village, there are the lesser remains of Taianapa and Fare Opu "marae" where petroglyphs can be seen. Leaving the bay, you pass through the former U.S. naval base built in 1942 with some of its landing stages and hutments still in existence. Across from this in the ring of islets, Bora Bora's airport was also built by these American troops. The road continues on through coconut groves, passing along the wind swept coast and through the quiet village of Anau, never losing sight of motus dotted around the turquoise and indigo lagoon.

At the southernmost point of Matira, the sheltered and most touristy part of the coast, the beach is beautiful and the lagoon magnificent. Up on the hill, a half-hour hike away, the old American Army artillery pieces pointing out over the lagoon are still watching over this spot. Having passed Raititi Point, the road enters the majestic Pofai Bay from where there are spectacular views of Otemanu Peak and out on Toopua "motu" the low profile of the legendary "Hiro's bells" can be seen. This part of the west coast around to Vaitape is the busiest and most inhabited where most of the hotels, sporting and leisure activities are concentrated.

4x4 safari excursions

Four-wheel drive excursions to the interior of the island follow the old military tracks. The best known of these starts at Faanui near Vairau Bay with a stop up on the ridge where there is a view across to the neighboring islands of Raiatea-Tahaa and Maupiti. The other route is also in the north of the island and follows tracks from Taihi Point and out along the ridge toward Mt. Popoti, 249 meters high, recognizable by its pointed shape.

12 4WD vehicles/Minimum 3, maximum 8 passengers each (except for private tours where there is no minimum).

Hiking excursions

Hiking should be undertaken accompanied by a guide due to the trails being unmarked and the difficulties of climbing in crumbling rock. The hike to Mount Pahia is fairly difficult and takes over two hours to go up and another two to come back down. It starts out at Vaitape through orchards and a mape forest with its quirky shapes and goes right up to the base of the cliffs. The path passes through extensive areas of wild orchids and tree ferns on the way to the first summit. The last leg along the ridge leads you to the summit of Pahia from where, as tradition has it, the god of war came down on the back of a rainbow. The panoramic view of the whole of the Windward Islands is enough to take your breath away. The hike to Mount Otemanu starts out from Vairua Bay and requires over two hours to reach the top. The second section, across some fairly steep terrain, is difficult due to the possible danger of falling rocks. Sometimes you come across wild goats. The cave entrance at the foot of Mount Otemanu is impressive in size. There is a frigate bird colony that nests in there and from inside the cave the view out over the ocean is just simply amazing.

Nautical activities

There is a wide range of activities you can do in this incredible lagoon. The now classic glass-bottomed boat originated in these waters, and canoe or catamaran outings to picnic on a motu, seeing the manta rays or watching the sharks feed have become ordinary fare. You can hire small boats and jet skis as well as larger, skippered craft to go and tease swordfish out on the open sea. Divers of all skill levels can find something here to satisfy their curiosity for adventure. Among the most frequently dived areas there are: "Ray Avenue" where all sorts of rays are to be found including the leopard ray in large shoals of a hundred or more; "White Valley" outside the reef on the north side of the island which gets its name from the white sand of its great reef wall with corals that attract thousands of multihued fish escorted by shoals of barracudas or sharks. The other amazing spot is at Tupitupiti Point, which is considered one of the most beautiful in all of Tahiti and her Islands. This reef fringe, carpeted with corals, sponges and sea fans that make a real riot of color, is also a meeting ground for large sharks, tuna fish and barracudas.

3 exceptional sites in the hotel enable you to admire more than 100 specimens: the Platax sand bank, the turtles channel and the coral garden. In coordination with the Ministry of Environment, a team is dedicated to taking care of wounded turtles. An adapted programme allows ensuring the ability to release all the gathered turtles into the ocean. This center set in a lagoon, offers the possibility of assisting with the turtle's meals in the morning as well as being informed of their way of life and even swimming among them respectfully in their environment and ecosystem (unique in Polynesia).
